Statistics On Excelsior Vote

We feel that the public should know the facts. The big Sugar and Milk men have for years blinded the people and by their vicious propaganda have completely ruined the morals of otherwise sterling characters. Today's letter, written by Miss Lotta Figure, head of the Cafe Economies Department of Puno University, will do much to counteract the poisonous advertisements which for years have confronted the innocent victims.

Dear Editor:
"After years of careless study, I have compiled statistics which clearly show the ruinous effects of the sugar-coffee-and-tea habit. Do you know that if each grain of sugar used in this habit was placed end to end that it would form a line a foot wide, completely encircling the city limits of Los Angeles or half the state of California? And if the cups and saucers were placed side by side they would reach from Richmond to Honolulu, if they didn't fall in the ocean before getting there?"

"I feel that you should know these important facts so that your Excelsior Vote will be decided fairly and squarely against this evil."
"I confess that I too was once addicted to the habit. Before commencing the evil habit, I weighed but 150 pounds. Look at me now. Even though I have been dieting for five years, I have lost but 100 pounds and now break the scales at 350 pounds. "What it has done for me, it will do for others. I can't say too much against sugar in tea. Pesimistically yours,

Ballots continue to flood the editor's office and should they continue to increase at the present rate it will be necessary to erect a turnstile at Nicholson park and have voters pass through so that an accurate vote can be obtained. It is felt that by this method all voters in favor of the evil will be eliminated at once and the result will thus be as desired.

Tennis Matches to Follow Immediately After Opening Ceremonies at Bathhouse

Richmond's streets began putting on a festive air last night in preparation for the parade this afternoon and the program which is to be presented for the opening of the Municipal Natatorium. Final details of the parade and ceremonies were arranged yesterday by the Civic Affairs Committee of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce of which Aubrey Wilson is the chairman.

The parade which will be composed of practically every organization in the city will form at Twenty-third street and Macdonald Avenue at 1:30. Headed by the Municipal Band, The Richmond Union High School band and the Moose Drum Corps the line will make its way down Macdonald avenue to Second street where the participants will be taken in cars to the front of the Municipal Natatorium where the parade will again form and go through the business section at the Point.

Richmond Police, firemen, lodges, boy scouts and representatives from practically every organization in the city are expected to participate. Wilson has sent out a call for all those who possibly can to be on hand to help open up the new bath house in the proper manner.

Following the conclusion of the parade at the Point the spectators will be seated in the gallery of the swimming pool and the program will be presented.

Mayor W. W. Scott will represent the city, E. J. Garrard the west side and P. M. Sanford the Chamber of Commerce. Wilson will act as master of ceremonies during the speaking.

Dr. Thomas A. Boyer will officially dedicate the pool when he will send Vera Conger and Edith Drummond into the water. Immediately after this some fancy diving and swimming stunts will be presented. City Manager J. A. McVittie is in charge of this part of the program.

After the swimming events the spectators may go in swimming in the pool or attend the tennis matches which will be held on the tennis courts immediately in back of the bathhouse. The Richmond Tennis club has arranged some good events for this afternoon and some that will be well worth watching.

Oakland Taking Great Interest In Leasing Of The Richmond Wharf

LEASING OF WHARF TO PARR AND $1,000,000 EXPENDITURE FOR IMPROVEMENTS HERE IS TAKEN FOR GRANTED

According to the Oakland Times and the Oakland Post-Enquirer of Friday, March 19, Fred Parr who appeared before the city council and directors of the Chamber of Commerce a few days ago is going to spend $1,000,000 on the development of the Richmond waterfront and he is also asking a fifty year lease on the 41 acres of industrial land of the City of Richmond, adjacent to the two wharves. All of which is received with a great deal of surprise by the local people who were in attendance at the meeting on last Wednesday night.

Either some enterprising reporter has had a vivid stretch of the imagination or he has misinterpreted the statements made to him by Parr in regard to the meeting Wednesday.

The Oakland Post-Enquirer gives the approximate value of the improvements and land value at the waterfront in the vicinity of the two wharves at two million dollars is close to the correct figure while the Times puts this amount to $750,000.

The local papers have the correct account of this situation when they stated that a committee had been appointed to confer with Parr regarding the drafting up of a lease which would be used as a basis of future study by the city council and the chamber directors for future development of the waterfront and a possible lease to a private operator. Parr was informed at the meeting that some of his plans would not meet with the approval of the city.

Keeping the above fact in mind the following excerpts from the article appearing in the Post-Enquirer of Friday March 19 makes interesting if not accurate reading: "Richmond's two million dollar city-built harbor is to be made a part of the Parr Terminal operation under the terms of a 50-year profit-sharing lease tentatively agreed upon by Fred D. Parr and Richmond city officials and chamber of commerce directors."

"Richmond enjoys the distinction of being the fourth city on the coast in volume of tonnage over all wharves, the total being over 6,500,000 tons last year against 3,845,000 in 1918 and 4,193,000 tons in 1922. Most of this tonnage was oil, but tonnage is tonnage."

CONGRESS TO CONSIDER THE MODIFICATION OF THE DRY ACT

Senate Judiciary Committee Agrees to Open Hearing on The Volstead Act

TO TRY MODIFICATION

Wets and Drys Will Each be Given Six Days in Which to Present Their Case

(By Universal Service)
By FRANK EDWARDS
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Prohibition in America entered a new phase today, a little more than six years after its advent.

For the first time since the passage of the Volstead Act, Congress will consider seriously means of modifying the law to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and wine.

By a vote of 4 to 1 the Senate judiciary subcommittee agreed to recommend open hearings on the subject. The full committee, although overwhelmingly dry, is expected to ratify the recommendation Monday.

Under the program, the hearings will begin early in April. The wets will be given six days to present their arguments and the drys an equal period.

The wets hailed the committee's decision as a district victory which will ultimately lead to modification. Heretofore, Congress has refused to even consider any change in the law.

Senator Edge of New Jersey, leader, announced that testimony by that side will be largely confined to suggestions of changes in the law under the constitution. He said there was no use wasting time demonstrating that the Volstead Act is a "failure as that has already been established."

The subcommittee recommended that the hearings be confined strictly to modification measures.

The wets will concentrate upon the Volstead Bill to change provisions in the Volstead Act limiting alcoholic beverages to one-half of one percent and write into the law instead of words "intoxicating in fact." This would leave the question of what is in fact intoxicating squarely up to the Supreme Court to decide. It would include wine as well as beer.

The committee will also hear arguments on the Bruce constitutional amendment.

Charges of Drunkenness Reach Sec. Of the Navy

Washington, March 19.—Brigadier General Smedley Butler's charges of drunkenness against Colonel Alexander Williams, U. S. M. C., reached Secretary of Navy Wilbur today and were referred immediately to Rear Admiral Edward H. Campbell, Judge Advocate General of the navy.

Colonel Williams himself, it was learned, is forwarding a statement in his own behalf answering General Butler's charges.

Secretary Wilbur expects to receive it tomorrow, and will delay action until he has had time to go into all phases of the controversy.

Major General John A. Lejeune, Commandant of the Marine Corps, is keeping hands off the matter, merely transmitting the reports received to the secretary without recommendation.

While the contents of the Butler report remained a carefully guarded secret, its receipt provoked new discussion in bringing charges against an officer at whose home he had just been entertained as guest of honor.

Coolidge Rites Will Be Held This Afternoon In Family Home

President Arrives on Sad Mission to Find That Deceased Had Made Funeral Plans

(By Universal Service)
PLYMOUTH, Vt., March 19.—Colonel John Calvin Coolidge, father of the President, will be returned tomorrow to the New England soil which has claimed eight generations of his forbears.

The funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon in the same sitting room of the ancestral home where in August 1923, he administered the oath of office to his only son as President of the United States. He will be buried in the Hillside cemetery on the crown of Plymouth notch beside his sturdy ancestors, who cleared the first farm land and whose history, like his own, is written in the indelible lore of the mountain country.

There, amid the scenes of his lifetime, will be marked the mortal end of "neighbor" Coolidge, nestor of the countryside, foremost citizen of the farming community, who died as he had desired—peacefully in the quiet township where he was born, educated, married and lived without ostentation a span of life "counted long in this time."

PRESIDENT ARRIVES
President Coolidge, sad loser in the race against death to the bedside of his father, arrived here today over the snowbanked mountain roads, to find that the Colonel had completed the funeral arrangements with the meticulous care characteristic of him.

Colonel Coolidge had provided in final instructions that the funeral service should be read by the Rev. John White, pastor of the Union church in which the Coolidges had received their first religious instruction and which they had regularly attended more than thirty years.

He had provided that Willard D. Cabot, the Woodstock undertaker should prepare his body for its final abiding place and had compensated him for the ministrations yet to be performed.

The grave in the snow blanketed family cemetery was dug this afternoon by Azro Johnson, a selectman, who too, had been paid for his services.

It is said that before the Colonel was gathered to his fathers he squared the trial balance with man, leaving not the slightest obligation to confuse or trouble his successors. He counted much on that New England trait which Longfellow accounted as a virtue, "he looked the whole world in the face for he owed not any man."

His last expression was a whispered prayer for the repose of his soul.

PRESIDENT CALM
The President came to the bier of his father with the fortitude and calm which he had inherited from the old gentleman, who for eight months had battled with courage and patience against the illnesses which beset him.

His recent visits to this now practically isolated, snowbound hamlet, had been marked by bereavement. It was twenty months ago that he came to the family burying ground with young Calvin, "A typical Coolidge with his mother's cheerful disposition," who in the next generation was expected to give voice to the Coolidge principles.

He will place tomorrow the body of his father beside the graves of his son, his sister and his mother. He last June raced by special train.

NO DISARMAMENT SOON

According to Frank H. Simonds, American expert on international affairs, writing from Paris, there is not the remotest chance of a successful arms conference in Europe during the present year. The preliminary conference to be held, Mr. Simonds declares, will devote itself to fine spun and highly involved technical questions. Mr. Simonds has come to his conclusions after extensive inquiries in England and France.

This news will doubtless come as a shock to some of our own good people who thought that, as soon as Uncle Sam decided to join the conference it would all work out beautifully and with little effort. On the other hand, Mr. Simonds says the Europeans cannot understand why the United States should have suddenly developed a great interest in the question of disarmament, and our stand invokes little if any enthusiasm.

The truth of the matter is that the European nations would a little rather Uncle Sam had not agreed to come to a conference on the limitation of arms. They don't want to cut down their armies themselves, and if we had refused to join the conference they could have blamed the obvious failure of the conference on the United States. And think what a good time our own internationalists would have had in agreeing with them.

The fact is that most of the European nations are really afraid to disarm. Each one of them is suspicious of the other, in spite of the league of nations, and is afraid that the other is trying to put something over.

And yet there are good people in the United States who actually want us to join the league and lamblie lie down beside these nations who don't even trust one another.

INTERNATIONAL MYSTERIES

This world in which we live has changed so materially in the last few years, that many of our viewpoints and judgments have had to be revised. The rapid strides of transportation and communication have given us new neighbors.

No matter what anyone may say, science is so compressing the world that we as a nation, cannot isolate ourselves. It is too small for us to be isolated from each other, and avoid irritation through want of contact. Why talk of isolation when the people of Berlin, Chicago, New York, London and Paris danced to the music of the same orchestra on New Year's night?

We have got to learn whether we want to or not, how to live together under these changed conditions. New problems must be solved.

One of the first steps, and it does seem the most logical one, is to provide the machinery to get the facts on these problems and situations. Just such an agency is the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations. When this organization is started next fall at Johns Hopkins University it will probe world affairs with the object of ascertaining the facts. It will do in its field what graduate schools have already done for medicine and law—provide a more systematic method for the study of international relations and better trained men to deal with international problems.

The Council of the League of Nations seems about as hard to break into as the New York Four Hundred.

THE FAMOUS ZENGER CASE

One of the things that we still hear a great deal about in our own day is "freedom of the press." Back in colonial times this principle was tested. We look upon it now as one of the essential things of our democracy.

Somewhere about 1754 or 1755 there lived a man called Peter Zenger (or Ziegler, as his name is sometimes found). He was a printer, and evidently a fearless one who believed in saying what he pleased.

Now Governor Cosby of New York had a case in the courts, whereby he was suing someone for a sum of money. He lost his case. So he immediately appointed a new judge. This seemed to Zenger to be so flagrant a misuse of his power that he attacked the governor through the columns of his paper.

His attacks were neither mild nor ineffective. They were abusive and forceful. The governor was fairly maddened, he was so angry. He ordered the paper burned and the editor brought to trial for libel.

Now the colonies had had a fair degree of freedom, and in many instances had insisted that they had the right always to speak their own minds. They had often stoutly maintained that the principle of freedom of the press was inviolate. Now they had a chance to test such a case.

Zenger was brought to trial. And he was acquitted. The odd part of it was that the jury was admitted by the jury and still they thought he should be freed. He had attacked a man and his administration, but there had been some grounds to the attack.

Zenger had been defended in the trial by a young lawyer from Philadelphia, Andrew Hamilton, who was one of the most brilliant lawyers of his day.

And from that day until this the liberty of the press has been one of the doctrines we most jealously guard in our country.

MILITANT MARY

FROM BOSTON TO CAMBRIDGE 1876 HAVANA TO SANTA CATALINA 1921

On October 9, 1876, Alexander Graham Bell (right) and Thomas A. Watson (left) held the first Out-Door Telephone Talk over two miles of telegraph wire between Boston and Cambridge.

One dark night in April of 1875 a lone horseman waited silently on the Cambridge shore of the Charles River. Suddenly a light flashed in the tower of the "Old North" Church in Boston and Paul Revere started on his famous historic ride to rouse the countryside and warn the people at Lexington and Concord that the British were on their way.

A hundred years later, on October 9, 1876, the telephone, then a brand new invention, was tested for the first time out of doors, and, by a strange coincidence, the route chosen for this first outdoor test of the telephone between Boston and Cambridge paralleled that taken when Paul Revere spread the word that the British had started. Had telephones been in existence at that time, the patriots of Lexington and Concord and other hamlets and farms could have been aroused in a matter of minutes, but then there would have been no "midnight ride" of Paul Revere to have been immortalized by Longfellow.

Naturally there was considerable interest in how the new invention would work out of doors and, indeed, whether it would really work or not. It had been demonstrated on March 10, 1876, and constantly after that date that human speech could be carried by wire, but this was indoors. Under practical line conditions would it work as well or was it possible that it wouldn't work at all? That was the question to which Alexander Graham Bell and his helper, Thomas A. Watson sought an answer.

Permission was secured from the Walworth Manufacturing Company to make use of their private telegraph line running between Boston and Cambridge, a distance of about two miles. This evening of October 9 was selected for the trial. Watson went to Cambridge, and Bell to the Boston office, where he connected a telephone, signaled Watson on the Morse sounder and waited while Watson made the telephone connection there. The result was entirely successful. Bell's voice came over the wire clearly, and for nearly three hours the experiments continued. When the next morning the Boston Advertiser in parallel columns published the notes of what was said, which had been taken down both by Bell in Boston and by Watson in Cambridge, the skeptics realized that the new invention was something more than a mere toy and that after all it might compete with the telegraph and that it really could convey accurate messages.

This conversation of October 9, 1876, is often referred to as the first long distance telephone conversation in the world. Today so far has the range of communication extended that it is possible to talk all the way from Havana, Cuba, to Catalina Island, off the Pacific Coast, via submarine, cable, overhead and underground lines—a distance of 5,500 miles.

AMERICA'S NATIONAL BEVERAGE ONCE HAD ITS BOOTLEGGERS AND SCOFFLAWS

Coffee Drinkers of an Earlier Era had to Depend Upon the Bootlegger for the Cup that Cheers but does not inebriate

WITH nose twitching like a rabbit's, and with a beam of light from a dark lantern to prevent a stumble over a chance obstacle, a muffled form proceeds cautiously down a dark alley.

The form halts before an open window. A loud sniff is followed by a grunt of exaltation; and then, in response to the waving of the lantern, the first form is joined by half a dozen others. Two minutes later the bootlegger and the building which sheltered his nefarious trade are in the hands of the servants of the law.

A raid upon a bootlegger's den in Twentieth Century America? Not at all. The scene is laid in Prussia nearly 150 years ago, and while it is indeed a bootlegger's den on which the raid is made, the bootlegger is not a dealer of alcoholic liquors—but of coffee.

A Government Monopoly
The use of coffee as a beverage

A Prussian "Coffee Smeller"

by the people of Arabia and Abvassia goes back to a period beyond that recorded by history. It was not introduced into Europe, however, until the Sixteenth Century, and for many years following its introduction its sale in a number of countries was subject to government regulation.

In Prussia coffee was made a government monopoly as late as the last quarter of the Eighteenth Century. Only those holding licenses were permitted to roast it. A corps of "coffee smellers," who went about with their noses in the air trying to detect infringers of the law, were set to guard against illicit coffee roasting and the bootlegging of the beverage.

In the Hands of the Law.

These "coffee smellers" became anathema and the butt of ridicule among the crowds in the speaking, and in spite of the unpopular monopoly the use of coffee increased rapidly during the following decades—not only in Prussia but throughout all Europe. America became a coffee drinking nation when the tea went into Boston Harbor, for tea, in the minds of the colonists, was inseparable from unjust taxation and foreign oppression.

Coffee in America

Since the night of the Boston Tea Party—December 16, 1773—the use of coffee in the United States has grown by leaps and bounds until it is now recognized as our national beverage. In step with, or rather a little ahead of, coffee's steady growth in popularity have gone many improvements in the treatment of the bean during the stages it must pass through from the bush in Brazil, Columbia, or Central America to the kitchen of the American housewife.

One improvement that has recently added greatly to the drinking quality of coffee involves a radical change in the method of roasting. In the earlier type of roaster, large quantities of coffee were roasted at one time. In the new machine that has just been developed, small quantities of the article are passed through perforated tubes revolving over carefully regulated fires. This permits a purifying circulation of fresh air which carries off the fumes of roasting, preventing their absorption by the coffee.

Although this machine roasts small quantities at a time, the operation is continuous; so the output is not only better in quality but greater in quantity than was the case with the old machines. Thus there is afforded, a striking example of the efforts made by the American coffee manufacturer to bring about a constant improvement in the quality of his product—efforts which have played an important part in raising the average American's consumption of a once bootlegged beverage to 500 cups a year.

Movie Models Show Advance Modes In Feminine Fashions

These striking fashions displayed in the fashion show of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's forthcoming production, "Monte Carlo," indicate the way the vane of fashion is pointing for the next few seasons in feminine fashions. At the left is an elaborate negligee of silver and black lace with fox bordering the neck for summer fashion.

It is developed of green satin and the beads are crystal applied in an all over pattern that is decidedly effective.

supply of water developed, but Dr. Pardee certainly is entirely wrong in his calculations regarding the revenue which we can secure from our operation of such a system. Dr. Pardee estimates the income of the East Bay Water Company for 1925 as $4,700,000, and states this would pay the interest at 5% on $9,400,000 and leave a surplus of $1,700,000 and that $600,000 would be sufficient to acquire the East Bay distributing system and develop the Lancha Plana source of supply from the Mokelumne River as well. I believe it is always better to deal with known facts where they are available, and the published statement of the East Bay company shows the gross revenue in 1925 was $3,694,000. From this must be deducted operating expenses and taxes which amount to $1,844,000. This leaves a net operating revenue of $1,850,000, which is exactly sufficient to pay the $3,700,000, which is about what the Lancha Plana project will cost this community. This means that we would only be able to pay the actual bond interest on the Lancha Plana project alone, and for the $3,000,000 remaining, provided this is all that would be involved, in the acquisition of the East Bay Water company, we would have a 5% interest to pay of $1,115,000, and nothing to pay if we were. Furthermore, it must be borne in mind that this does not make any allowance whatever for depreciation, which at the very lowest estimate would reach several hundred thousand dollars annually. In addition to all other costs we must meet legal and court expenses of the East Bay Water company, $150,000, election expenses $100,000 and miscellaneous expenses of $50,000, which the East Bay Utility Board has just recently advised must be assessed on the citizens for next year. I venture the opinion that no such expenses as these are included in the administration of the East Bay Water company.

"It is impossible for me to understand," said Millar, "why what basis of reasoning Dr. Pardee arrives at the conclusion that the East Bay Utility District can perform the miracle of operating a distributing system without any operating expenses. So far as the matter of the district not having to pay taxes is concerned, this is not of value, and should not be considered a benefit by the taxpayer for the simple reason that if the $350,000 paid by the East Bay Water company in taxes last year should not find its way into the Treasury next year, the amount would certainly have to be supplied by a higher tax on the citizens of the district. It is unquestionably true, therefore, on the basis of Dr. Pardee's own figures, that if we develop the Lancha Plana project and acquire the East Bay distributing system for $60,000,000, we will have to tax ourselves not less than $1,500,000 to meet the deficit created by operating expenses, even when the people of this community are paying exactly the same price for water as they are paying today. If any citizen doubts the accuracy of these figures, I urge him to submit what I state to his banker and ascertain if I am sound in my analysis of the problem. There is but one way in which we can hope to secure cheaper water and prevent an enormous increase in the cost of water in this district, and that is to develop hydro-electric energy in conjunction with our water supply system as a by-product. If this is not done, either directly or indirectly, the citizens of the East Bay district will pay much more dearly for their water than they are paying today to the East Bay Water company and our water costs today are higher than in any other important city in the United States."

Story of Canadian Woods Is Coming To the Richmond

A story of Quebec with its old-time romantic atmosphere and Canadian woods—one of the most popular novels by a tremendously popular author.

That's what one finds on the screen at the Richmond Theatre today in the Irvin Willat-Paramount production, "The Ancient Highway," by James Oliver Curwood.

Jack Holt, Billie Dove and Montagu Love are featured in the principal roles of the production, adapted for the screen by James S. Hamilton and Eve Unsell.

Holt, as Clifton Grant, after adventurous wanderings all over the world, comes back to Canada to settle an account with the man who had ruined and killed his father. He finds that Ivan Ford (Love), the big lumber king, is not only his own enemy but the enemy of a beautiful girl (Billie Dove), whose fortune and good name are both in danger.

Grant, to wipe out his own debt of vengeance and because he has fallen in love with the girl, enters in the unequal battle against one of the biggest and most powerful men in the country, though his every resource at his command but against the forces of nature as well.

The picture ends with the thrilling break-up of the log-jam, and the hero, after risking death, comes back to life to find himself, under surprising circumstances, married to the girl he loves.

A stirring romance of open roads and deep forests and old Quebec, of danger and brave deeds, there you have "The Ancient Highway."

Appearing in support of the featured players are Stanley Taylor, Lloyd Whitlock, William A. Carroll, Marjorie Bonner and Christian J. Frank.

Other features on the same program include "What A Night," a screamingly funny Lige Conley comedy "Felix Spots the Spooks," a Felix the cat cartoon.

The application and questionnaire of Mortimer R. Veale of Antioch, who successfully passed the examination for a realtors license Thursday, was forwarded to the Board of the Contra Costa Board of realtors. This places the county board 200 per cent above its quota in the state-wide drive now being made. The ambition of the California Real Estate association is to secure two thousand new members this week which will again place it in the lead of state real estate associations.

A. E. F. COMEDY PLEASING AT THE CALIFORNIA

If the gales of laughter that emanated for an hour and a half from the California Theatre last night where a packed audience was seeing "Behind the Front," Paramount's comedy of the A. E. F., could have been broadcast throughout the district, the theatre lobby would be mobbed permanently.

Hardly has such a comedy as this picture, which features Wallace Beery, Raymond Hatton, and Mary Brian, been thrown on the screen in this city.

The picture starts with a chuckle and works into laughter that continues right through to the end. "Behind the Front" is remarkable in that practically every scene of the picture contains a laugh.

Among those getting the biggest amount of fun out of "sunny" France were the numerous ex-soldiers sprinkled through the audience.

As a pair of dumb doughboys, who get into all the trouble possible in the army, Beery and Hatton win first honors.

The air raid, inspection, and especially the scenes in No Man's Land, are among the funniest ever filmed.

"Behind the Front" is really a classic of the war, and of the irrepressible humor of the American doughboy.

Mary Brian as the Red Cross worker, for whose love Beery and Hatton perform all their exploits, and get into all their trouble, is more charming than ever.

Chester Conklin as the Scotch "Kittie" who is imported to a Y.M.C.A. hut to tell the doughboys how he won his medals, gives a riotous piece of pantomime.

The picture was adapted to the screen by Monty Brice from a short story by Hugh Wiley. Ethel Doherty wrote the screen play and Edward Sutherland wielded the megaphone.

If it hurts you to laugh, don't expose yourself to the merited success of this picture. "Behind the Front" will chase the bloom off the face of the most confirmed pessimist.

Other features on the same program include Carl Kreutzen, Richmond's sensational boy soprano, with Larry Canelo, at the piano, "Careful, Please," a Lloyd Hamilton comedy, "Kelly Color," a screen novelty in colors, "International News."

ROTARIANS ARE TOLD OF CRIME SITUATION HERE

Discussing the crime problems confronting various cities, Earl Warren, district attorney of Alameda county, in addressing the Rotary club at their weekly luncheon yesterday said that "law enforcement in each community rises no higher than the public conscience in that community."

The annual cost of crime in the United States is approximately ten billion dollars, said Warren and more persons were killed in Oakland last year than in London. He classed the United States as being the most lawless nation in the world.

Attorney Wilbur S. Pierce, who has recuperated from the murderous attack of several weeks ago, was given an ovation when he was called upon to address the club.

"I sincerely appreciate the honor accorded me today," said Pierce. "It is only by the grace of God that I am still amongst you and words cannot express my heartfelt gratitude for the offers of sympathy and tokens of love and affection that were tendered to me in my recent unfortunate suffering."

Those messages that came to me aided me materially and spiritually to fight my way, and my heart warms and my eyes grow moist as I think of the kindnesses that were showered upon me by the people of my home city. I only regret that I have no way of personally thanking you all."

"In Alameda county, we have in different cities different types of crime," said District Attorney Warren in discussing the situation.

"The crime problem in each reflects the wishes of the people of that community. In Emeryville you will find law violations that Berkeley would not tolerate for a single day."

John Quinn, past National Commander of the American Legion, was among the guests present at the luncheon.

The Lion's quartet, composed of H. M. Mylander, Bert Carter, C. F. Donnelly and D. T. Shaw, sang several numbers and Donnelly two vocal solos were well received. Playgrounds for Children Needed Says Jay B. Nash

Jay B. Nash, supervisor of playgrounds and recreation of the city of Oakland, and Dr. Herbert Stoltz, state supervisor of physical education, were the principal speakers at the quarterly meeting of the Contra Costa Welfare association, held Thursday night at the Hotel Los Medanos in Pittsburg.

"By making 100 per cent use of the present school equipments, the question of keeping the children off the streets and giving them supervised recreation would be materially lessened," declared Supervisor Nash in urging small communities to make more use of the playgrounds and parks.

"You cannot coerce the young people," he declared. "They must want to do things. The fascination of work or play must be so great as to offset the fascination of getting into mischief, and until we can devise some means of doing this, our work is not done."

Dr. Stoltz in his address stressed the time necessary to complete plans outlined for the playgrounds and urged the communities not to be discouraged if what they wanted was not completed in a day.

There were forty members present at the meeting at which Fred Ramsdall, superintendent of the Pittsburg schools; George Engle, part time instructor and Boy Scout master of Pittsburg and City Trustee Hugh Donovan discussed the various phases of the question as pertaining to Pittsburg and the county.

Some special phase of welfare work will be discussed at each of the quarterly meetings. At the June meeting which is to be held at Martinez, public health will be discussed and Miss Mabel Miller, county nurse, will provide. The September meeting will be in Crockett under the supervision of Probation Officer Thomas Boyer and it has been suggested that Chief of Police Volmer of Berkeley be asked to discuss the question of probation at this meeting.

Rain Gives Ball Players Chance To Take a Rest

(By Universal Service)

SEATTLE TRAINING CAMP

Hermosa Beach, Cal., March 19.—That little song entitled "Don't Mind The Rain" might have been written for baseball players, but the don't take it much to heart. The Indians—and for that matter the Cubs, Angels and Stars, awoke this morning to find that someone had spilled the clouds during the night, and dampened the neighboring real estate. The sun and rain played hide and seek for several hours before the former took the count long enough to chase away all chances of baseball.

The tribe welcomed the layoff—at least it did for an hour or so, but after the boys loafed around trying to find something to do besides read the sport sheets or play "hearts," they decided that they would almost as soon practice as vacation all day. Some of the athletes went fishing, while Skipper Killefer and an automobile load gambled on the weather and drove in to Wrigley field to see the senior and Junior Wrigley teams, otherwise the Cubs and Angels play.

The gamblers lost, as they ran into a miniature cloudburst, which not only doused all hopes of seeing a game, but also stalled the Killefer chariot when water seeped under the hood and kept the distributor from distributing whatever it is supposed to distribute.

After the rain abated somewhat Red Dog borrowed the writer's overcoat and dried out the distributor (wetting the overcoat, however) and the party drove on to Wrigley Field, where Killefer completed arrangements for the games Saturday and Sunday with some of Joe McCarthy's staff.

The Cub pilot announced that outfielders Jarrett, Kelly and Scott, first baseman Tolson, second baseman Beck, shortstop, Cooney, third baseman, Michaels, catchers and Gilpin and Pitchers Welch and Touchstone would oppose the Indians Saturday, and the same lineup with another pair of hurlers would carry on Sunday. Mike Doolin will lead the Cublets.

The Seattle Regulars will oppose the Chicagoans while the Indian Lambs travel to San Pedro and play an all-star collection Sunday. The Lambs tackle the Pasadena Elks.

HEEDED MOTHER'S ADVICE

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 26, 1926.
For more than a year I suffered from hemorrhage from a tumor. During this time I was treated by several physicians, all of whom agreed that an operation was the only thing that could help me.

Neither my husband nor I liked the idea of the knife. Upon the advice of my mother who, after having an operation on the right side, the wound forming a fistula which had never healed for 14 years, had found complete relief and asthma healed by drinking the Fong Wan Herbs, I decided to try them.

Owing to my terrible condition and my extremely poor health, it took about six months before I was entirely well. I am now in splendid health and my old trouble has been completely vanquished.

I formerly lived at 1805 Howard street, San Francisco, but have recently removed to Oakland. My phone number is Market 6560.

Coolidge Rites to be Held This Afternoon In the Family Home

train and by automobile over the perilous, rain washed mountain roads while the Colonel underwent a serious emergency operation.

He motored today over snow flaked roads at the edge of the ice covered Ottaquachewee from Woodstock, the railroad terminal, to Bridgewater, the highway danger point, where he embarked upon a horse drawn sleigh for the seven mile climb to the family home at the summit of the Notch.

Mrs. Coolidge rode beside him in the three seated surrey, young John, from Amherst college, and Attorney General John S. Sargent, old family friend, composed with them the party to which the tidings of death had been brought shortly before midnight as the Presidential special raced northward.

HIGHWAY CLOSED

The highway had been closed to all other traffic. Neighbors, supplied with shovels and supported by a tractor plow, had toiled vigorously, but in vain to clear the entire roadway. Passing vehicles would have courted danger.

Willie workers were still clearing the drifts when the Presidential party reached the village square at the present Cilleys store, where the President was born and now occupied like a mining camp by newspaper men.

FLAG HALF MAST

The flag was half masted on the little school, which both the Colonel and President had attended, solitary sentry, uniformed State guardsmen, patrolled the front of the house. Eleven foot snow banks stood there in mute evidence of the severity of the late winter.

President and Mrs. Coolidge and their son, prayed in silence at the bier. The President and Mrs. Coolidge completed routine funeral arrangements and an hour later, they re-entered the sleigh with John to be driven back to Woodstock by Warren Reed, the foremost horseman of the mountains.

COOLIDGE AT HOTEL

President and Mrs. Coolidge are quartered at Woodstock Inn, a widely known resort hotel of comfortable accommodations. They will depart by special train for Washington after the funeral, probably tomorrow evening.

DEATH CAUSE GIVEN

Dr. Cram, the family physician, after a conference with Major James E. Coupal, the President's physician and who had treated the Colonel during prior illnesses, announced that the cause of death was carcinoma in the region of the bladder, supplemented by and some complications, with myocarditis, an inflammation of the heart muscles, as the secondary contributing cause.

CONDOLENCES RECEIVED

President Coolidge is receiving messages of condolence from throughout the world. One of the first was from Governor Smith of New York, reading as follows: "The administration at Albany join with me and all the members of my family in an expression of our sincere sympathy."

Col. Coolidge has suffered successively a heart bloc, a severe prostatic ailment and paralysis, resulting from the impaired heart, which caused him to lose the use of both legs.

At the request of the President, he went to Massachusetts General hospital a year ago for examination by heart specialists, but he persistently refused the President's request to pass the winter at the White House. He always replied that he would find most contentment amid the scenes of his life-time.

ZERO WEATHER

Zero weather greeted President Coolidge and his party upon their arrival at White River Jet., at 6 o'clock this morning to begin the last stage of their 600 mile train ride.

A bright sun came over the mountain tops, however, and at noon the temperature had ascended nearly fifteen degrees. A magnificent mountain day awaited them.

Mrs. Coolidge wore a heavy fur coat against the change from balmy Washington to mountain cold. The President wore a heavy cloth coat, declining a raccoon coat and goloshes offered him by old neighbors.

They kept for the most part to their suite in the Woodstock Inn, receiving few callers. At the family home they were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. John T. Wilder. She is the President's aunt, a sister of the Colonel's first wife.

Col. Coolidge, like the President, was an only son.

The Wilders live on the adjoining farm, the family home was tonight in care of Mrs. May Johnston, the nurse; Miss Aurora Pierce, the housekeeper, and Deputy Sheriff Andy Macaulay, who had been the Colonel's attendant during the final illness.

Peaceful Ranch House Revealed As Alcohol Plant

(By Universal Service)

GILROY, Cal., March 19.—A peaceful old ranch house hidden away in the hills back of here, was today revealed as a huge alcohol manufacturing plant.

A squad of Federal prohibition agents under the personal direction of Col. Sam Johnston, entered the place. This is what they found:

Charles Turnbull, 26, dozing in a chair beside a 1300 gallon alcohol still which Col. Johnston asserted has been in operation night and day for the past six months.

Forty-five thousand gallons of mash and 2000 gallons of high proof alcohol.

Turnbull was arrested. Prohibition agents said they expected to make several important arrests.
